Re: Good guys vs. bad guys

Everybody knows that the only way to stop a bad guy with a gun, is a good guy with a gun. Or in the case of the recent Texas church and Las Vegas tragedies, dozens or hundreds of good guys and gals with guns. The NRA and the gun manufacturers will love this simple solution: every concert, mall, restaurant, baseball/football stadium attendee or visitor should be issued an AK-47 with two maximum capacity magazines whenever they enter any public space.

This is pretty much the case in many civilized countries such as Somalia and Syria. And sure, the snowflakes will cry that there might be a few "friendly fire casualties". But if every adult at that church or concert had been armed to the teeth, and then some bad guy decided to pop off a few rounds (or firecrackers), hey, it would at least make some great video! And who needs video games when we can have the real thing, right here in the good ole USA?
