Real Threats

Regarding the recent news that the Republican-controlled U.S. House of Representatives passed a budget that prohibits our military from making any effort to deal with changes due to global warming: The Republicans spent billions of dollars and thousands of lives in pursuit of fantasy weapons of mass destruction, but won't spend a dime on a real threat to national and world security such as rising sea levels?

All I can say is, it's a good thing our Navy has never located any of its bases at sea level.
