GTF, Lucas Nguyen,

Immigration is one of the most contentious issues in the United States today. While the entire population in the U.S. with the exception of Native Americans are immigrants or the descendents of immigrants, both the history of immigration in the U.S. and current policy are the nexus of heated debates weaving together national and regional ideas about race, class, nation, gender, and citizenship. This class will use the history of immigration in the western part of the U.S. and the particular experience of Mexican immigration as a way of understanding the larger issues at stake in the current immigration debate and understandings of U.S.-Mexico relations. Secondarily, we will explore the relation of immigration policy to labor issues through looking at the history of farmworkers in California and Oregon.

Today in the state of Oregon, Mexican farmworkers are the back bone of the booming agricultural sector. Increasingly, the farm labor force is made up of indigenous Mexicans--primarily from the southern Mexican state of Oaxaca. While these developments may appear to mark a "new" era in Mexican migration to the state, in fact there is a long history to Mexican presence in the Northwest. Through using the state of Oregon as a primary focus along with California, this class will look historically at the experience of Mexican migrants and immigrants in the United States. Our understanding of the historical experience of Mexican workers will be framed by looking at how the United States used territorial control and immigration policy to regulate labor flows, wages, and the politics of belonging in the United States. We will also explore how Mexican migrants and immigrants have created transborder communities which link families together across multiple locations in the U.S. and Mexico. Issues of race, ethnicity, and gender within these communities and in relation to the larger context they exist in will also be explored.

Finally, we will explore farmworker and Mexican immigrant and anti-immigrant social movements as a way of looking at how immigrant workers and others have responded to and in turn influence the larger structural forces of immigration law and U.S. trade and economic policy.

Assignments and Grading: Students are expected to read all required readings (approximately 125 pages per week), actively participate in class discussions, and complete the following assignments:

Midterm paper (covering topics from first half of class) (40 percent)

Take Home Final Exam (35 percent)

Attendance (5 percent)

Weekly responses to prompts posted on blog for class. (20 percent)

Late papers and exams will be graded down one full letter grade.

Class attendance. Because this class has many speakers and a high level of student participation, attendance for every class is important. If you miss more than two classes your class participation grade will be an F unless you are ill. Your grade will be significantly affected if you miss class sessions because you will not be able to respond to the prompts posted on Ning for weekly writing posts.

Weekly writing prompt and instructions for responding on Blackboard discussion forums.

Everyone in this class will be registered to participate in the Anth329 discussion forums on Blackboard. Every Thursday, the instructor will post a question or two which will serve as prompts. All students are expected to write a two paragraph response to this prompt no later than Friday evening. The responses have to be carefully written in full sentences, use correct grammar, and contain respectful language. Your response should demonstrate that you have done the reading AND have been paying attention in class. You will get ten points per week for a total of 100 points for completing each week's response. If you do not complete a week or your response is inappropriate or inadequate you will not get the points. You may comment on previous posts, but must do so in a respectful manner, focusing on the content of what someone says in relation to class. The instructor and GTF will monitor and grade these posts weekly.

PLAGIARISM IS NOT PERMITTED IN THIS CLASS. Plagiarism consists of turning in a paper or exam or exam question written by someone else, taking something written in a book by someone else and including it in a paper without quotation marks, and paraphrasing parts of books as if they were your own. This includes anything that is on the internet in electronic form as well as in printed form. If you are quoting more than four words, put quotation marks around it and footnote it. Even if you note something in your bibliography and fail to put quotation marks around it in the text, it is still plagiarism. Any plagiarized papers will receive an F. No negotiations.

Incomplete Policy. No incompletes will be given in this class except in relation to extreme circumstances such as a documented critical illness (mental or physical). If you have a serious issue that comes up and causes delays in your assignment or interrupts your attendance please see me immediately and tell me what is going on as soon as you can. Please do not wait until the term is over or nearly over. If you register for the class and do not complete the assignments and do not communicate and attain my agreement for the specific terms for granting you an incomplete, you will be given credit for the work you turned in and receive an F for work not turned in. This will be calculated as part of your final grade.
